The following fortnightly review of the nurkets is from the "Overland Trade Report" The course of trade in this market for the past fortnight has become like a "thrice told tale," in and with the exception of remarking upon the duliiseas and depression, which still exists, especially for imported manufactures, there is nothing to report t means stone at irregular and in most cases almost entirely nominal prices. Matters instead of mending have day by day been growing more un-satisfactory, until as if by general consent, both natives and foreigners would seem to have some to a complete pages, so far as entering into any freels operations is concerned. What may be termed the immediate demands for consumption has been the only inducement for native purchases, and thour have invariably been made upon the hand to mouth rinciple, and of the most meagre description-Even upon inversible bering of both price and credit. the Chinese show no willingness whatever to assume freak responsibilities, and although it iswell known that their supplies are very low, if not well nigh extension, they appear to be satisfied to partiently await the appourance of a legitimate demand from the interior before purchasing. This custions policy, which has been in practice new for some time past, has evidently been induced by provious overtrading on the part of many native necessates, and doubtless it points to a more healthy and administral source of trade for the future. With regard to the present inactivity there are numerous explanations corrent, but payhaps the real estate could only be explained by a more thorough knowledge of the interior of China, its wants and it recourses, thun is at present known to the foreigner. Until this is attained it must be bert to impossible to judge of the influences which. dition of trade here. The harvesting of the rice copy which has been in progress for the past month, is now nearly completed, and as report says the prospects are most encouraging for a familiar out turn; the matres argue that trade kero will soon feet the effects of this stimuing, and improve accordingly. It is this fact also they say that has brought about much of the present stagnation, there being during such period little or no demand from the interior for manufactured goods. It is also evident from the small anles of Yarn and Raw Cotten within the last month, that the native factories have been communing but little material. which would also seem to point to an active trade ed as soon as the harvesting season is over. It is many years show the great staple article of food in Chius, Rice, has been an cheap and abundant as at present, and chapmers and shindance of food is always one of the primary elements of commercial prosperity. The improved condition of the markets at the northern ports has strengthened the position of importors here somewhat, at well as taken off some portion. 200 of the accumunisting stocks, but such influences as these are scarcely manifest with the existing depressed state of trade. The bulk of the transactions reported below in both Groy Shirtings and T-Clothe have been for manipment to the North; prices remain much as at the date of last report. but are slightly improved perhaps by the recent decline in exchange. As high as $2524 has been paid for it lies. Grey Shirtings, but for the present this must be considered the extreme range of the market, the bulk of the business having been at $2.85. American Drills have been in demand, and comparatively large sales are reported. Varn has large neglected, and the market is entirely nominal. while for weedless there has been scarcely an in-
